 House of the Good Shepherd Women's Institution
 2650 West Fort Street

Responding to an appeal from Bishop Caspar Henry Borgess in 1883, five Sisters of the Good Shepherd arrived in downtown Detroit to the Ward Mansion on Fort Street to establish their first home. The industrial revolution brought progress and success to the area but left thousands of young girls and women behind, most of them living and working in desperate conditions. By the turn of the century, 33 Sisters were caring for more than 200 girls and young women in their facility.

Over the next 30 years, the House of the Good Shepherd continued to expand services to the ever-growing number of young women it served.
